From its humble beginnings at the Getty Center to its infiltration of alternative venues all across LA, the little dance-film festival that could continues to outdo itself by presenting a finely curated smattering of some of the most imaginative offerings from the genre. Celebrating its seventh season, Dance Camera West kicks off a month-long festival with a weekend presentation of over 25 dance shorts in three programs. On Friday night, guests are treated to an opening party following the screenings in the cozy confines of the REDCAT lounge.
